Accident kills Loretto woman, injures man

STAFF REPORT

A fatal accident on Sunday afternoon claimed the life of a Loretto woman.

The accident happened at 3:53 p.m. in the 8000 block of Loretto Road in Nelson County. According to a Kentucky State Police report, Clara R. "Rene" Donahue, 44, Loretto, was driving her 2002 Dodge Dakota southbound when the vehicle left the roadway and struck a tree. She was pronounced dead at the scene by the Nelson County Coroner's Office.

Donahue's passenger, James R. "Bobby" Mattingly, 45, Loretto, was flown to University of Louisville Hospital by helicopter with life-threatening injuries. As of 12:50 p.m. Tuesday, he was in stable condition.

Donahue was wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident. Mattingly was not.

The police report states the truck left the roadway for unknown reasons.

No 'snow days' means school's out for summer a little earlier this year

Some school officials say they've never seen it happen before

BRAD BOWMAN
bbowman@cni.com

Despite the unpredictability of the area's recent weather with tornadoes, snow and an unseasonably warm spring, school districts in Nelson County didn't miss a single day and didn't have to use any make-up days set aside in the calendar year.

Nelson County Schools Transportation Director Todd Sanders can't remember a year that Nelson County Schools haven't had to use make-up days.

"It's been since at least I went to school," Sanders said. "We have those days scattered throughout the year and this year we will have a full two weeks of spring break because of it."

When roads are questionable, Sanders is on the roads by 3:30 a.m. to check conditions and contact the media with his decision for closings or delays.

"Glen Leake, assistant eirector of transportation, has been here for 27 years and he has never seen this happen," Sanders said.

Tom Brown, director of transportation, facilities and athletics for Bethlehem High School, agrees it's unusual. He thinks this may have happened once during his time in the Nelson County School District.

"I can't say for certain, but it may have been between 1979 and 1980," Brown said.

The rare occurrence of missing no school days means schools will get out a little earlier than normal and students will get the breaks scheduled during the year. That wasn't the case last year when Nelson County Schools missed 12 days due to flooding and snow. But the school districts have built-in days in their calendars that accommodate the anticipated "snow days."

"The way we set the calendar for the school year it has make-up days built into it," Nelson County Schools Superintendent Anthony Orr said. "We look at the last several years and take an average of the days missed to designate how many make-up days we will need."

Nelson County set aside several days scattered throughout the school year beginning with Jan. 7 and ending with May 4 for make up days.

This year the anticipated last day of school for Nelson County School District students is May 31

Parents voice concern over program cuts

Art teacher, literacy assistant positions at Cox's Creek may be eliminated

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

Nelson County Schools Superintendent Anthony Orr met with about 45 Cox's Creek Elementary School parents and staff Monday evening to address concerns that the school may lose its art teacher next year.

Three part-time literacy staffers and one special education teacher may also lose their positions in 2012-2013, which Orr and Principal Jan Lanham attributed to funding cuts on the state and federal level. However, parents and staff argued that on a district level, funds should be allocated differently to permit one of the county's top-performing schools to keep its programs intact.

Funding challenges

A few hours before Monday night's meeting, the school's Site-Based Decision-Making council discussed its options for the allocation of teachers, and ultimately decided to hold steady with a proposed allocation that it voted for March 19. That proposal is still subject to change, in large part based on how many students enroll at Cox's Creek compared to the district's projection, Lanham told the council.

The proposed allocation keeps the school's one music teacher and one physical education teacher, but eliminates the one art teacher position, held by Angela Ford.

It also eliminates three part-time literacy program assistants, bringing the program from six total staffers to three full-time staff. Lanham credits the school's unique literacy program with its standardized test scores — consistently among the highest in the district.

Moreover, the school is expected to see district-funded special education staff cut from three to two positions.

The drop in teacher positions is in part because the district allocated 20 teachers to the school for next year compared to 21.5 this year, a calculation based on projected enrollment. But federal Title I funds, which used to cover the cost of 1.5 teachers, will next year only cover 0.9 teachers, according to Lanham.

Lanham took a survey of teachers in which they were asked which topics they would be comfortable teaching within their classrooms.

"There was no competition in terms of the one they felt the least comfortable teaching, [which] was music, and then P.E. and art were pretty much equally divided," Lanham said. In fact, only one teacher said he or she felt comfortable

Colonial Days weekend will provide a glimpse of yesteryear

Set for Friday through Sunday

jcorbett@kystandard.com

A notable time period and some notable figures in Kentucky's past will be showcased during the annual Bardstown Colonial Days Friday-Sunday at the Old Bardstown Village.

Re-enactors will dress in 18th-century clothing and show the public a glimpse of what life was like during the early settlement of the Bluegrass State.

The three-day event will feature songs and dances from that time period, as well as provide learning experiences for students. This is the second year for the event and event director Dennis Medley couldn't be happier with the outcome.

"We had such a great response last year," Medley said.

Some of the events planned for Colonial Days include:

- An 18th-century magician will perform reoccurring shows throughout the weekend.
- On Friday evening, Tavern Night will be 4 p.m. — closing at the Old Talbott

Bloomfield burglar sentenced; may face new charges soon

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

A man has pleaded guilty to three burglaries in a string of overnight break-ins around Bloomfield Oct. 30-31, 2011.

Samuel Connor Mays, 18, Bloomfield, was sentenced to 10 years in prison for second-degree burglary, five years in prison for third-degree burglary, 12 months in jail for attempt to commit third-degree burglary and 90 days in jail for three counts of third-degree criminal mischief.

These were to be served concurrently for a total of 10 years, but Mays received five years probation for all of his sentence following set conditions, including paying restitution, committing no new offenses and serving 180 days in Nelson County Jail. Mays has been credited for 107 days.

At least seven Bloomfield establishments were broken into at the end of October.

"We'd gotten an anonymous tip that [Mays] may have been involved. We started looking for him," Sheriff's Department Detective Jonathan Snow said.

According to a police report, Mays went to the Nelson County Sheriff's Office on Nov. 11, 2011, and admitted to breaking into Hendren & Lockett doctor's office at 107 Perry St. and Houghlin Funeral Home at 120 Fairfield Hill.

"He denies breaking into the church but the modulus operandi is the same on all three of the burglaries and they happened on the same night," Snow wrote in his report.

Mays was ultimately convicted of attempting to break into the doctor's office, where he cut his hand on a broken window, the funeral home and the Bloomfield House of God. He reportedly stole a gun from the funeral home and about $4 from the office of the Bloomfield House of God, but left musical instruments and equipment

An Oregon woman reportedly lost control of her car swerving to miss an animal about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday.

An Oregon woman overturned in a creek along Old Bloomfield Road Tuesday morning trying to avoid an animal.

The Nelson County Sheriff's Department had not released the identity of the woman by press time.

"She almost hit a dog. She veered off to avoid the dog," Dep. Ramon Pineiroa said. The woman identified the animal as a pony, according to Pineiroa, but an area person said a dog runs around the area often.

The woman's yellow Ford Focus ZX3 appeared to have skidded a long distance before overturning in the creek about 10 feet below the roadway.

The woman was out of the vehicle by the time the Nelson County Sheriff's Department and Nelson County EMS arrived. She complained of non-life-threatening neck and back pain, Pineiroa said. She was transported to Flaget Memorial Hospital.

A Bardstown woman was transported to Flaget Memorial Hospital Monday morning after striking a pole in front of Big O Tires.

Elizabeth Ann Diaz, 27, Bardstown, apparently experienced a seizure while driving in the area of 618 Bloomfield Road about 8:04 a.m. It caused her to run her Dodge Avenger off the road, through the grass and into the pole, Bardstown Police Officer Bill Buckman said.

Neither Diaz nor her two children were injured in the accident, but Diaz was transported to Flaget because of the seizure, Buckman said.

Bardstown Police and Nelson County EMS responded to the scene. The right front end of the vehicle sustained damage.

that were in the worship hall.

The culprits in burglaries that same night at Bloomfield City Hall, Bloomfield Electronics, White's Auction House and the former Taste of Country Café have not yet been apprehended.

"I assume there were more people involved but [Mays] will not discuss that and we didn't have any evidence in the other burglaries to connect him," Snow said.

However, Mays allegedly admitted recently to another burglary — a break-in at the Fairfield Post Office around Oct. 21, 2011.

"It was over the night that night, he went in through a window and was trying to get into a safe. He was unsuccessful in getting into the safe," Snow said. Nothing appeared to have been taken.

That burglary is likely to be presented to the grand jury soon, according to Snow.

A home on Old Nazareth Road that burned in 2009 has been sitting waiting for the owners to demolish it. Nelson County ordered the home torn down last week.

Nuisance law has its usefulness

The neighbors of the properties at 1130 Old Nazareth Road and 91 Lebanon Junction Road in Boston can finally have some vindication.

Nelson County Judge Executive Dean Watts issued an order last week to tear down both properties because they are in direct violation of the Nuisance Ordinance of Nelson County. We applaud the measures that are finally taking place after years of frustration for the residents of both areas.

Both homes being destroyed burned in 2009 and were caught up in court proceedings. While the frustration level has been high on getting these issues resolved, the county had been advised by counsel not to proceed while any bankruptcy or court proceedings were taking place. So it's been a wait-it-out mentality and it finally paid off. Local residents can now rest easy knowing that the public health and safety issues have finally been addressed, not to mention the unsightly scenes. And that's exactly what this ordinance is designed to accomplish.

Watts said that since the Nuisance Ordinance was passed in 2003, there have been a lot of success stories. Code Enforcement Officer Logan Spaulding said most people will comply after you contact them within the seven days. A perfect example was a burned out home in New Hope where the owner received the notice, contacted the office immediately and complied within 60 days by leveling and removing the remains of the structure. Smaller non-compliance issues include weeds and garbage removal but can be dangerous trees, open wells and more.

While Spaulding hasn't been on the job for long, he takes every complaint seriously and is doing a good job of addressing issues within three to 10 working days.

"In this job, you have to balance people's property rights with the public's safety," Spaulding said.

We couldn't agree more.

You can find the complete Nelson County Nuisance Ordinance at www.nelsoncountyky.com/nuisance\_ordinance.pdf.

To file a complaint, you can visit the Nelson County Code Enforcement office at 115 E. Stephen Foster Ave. to fill out the appropriate form.

OUR VIEWS

New obituary format for Standard

"Give sorrow words; the grief that does not speak whispers the o'er-fraught heart and bids it break."

— William Shakespeare

Sometimes the love of the others and the stories they share of a loved one who has recently passed can help to heal the pain of their passing. It's that communal sharing that makes grief a little more bearable and tells family and friends they are not alone with their sadness — others share the pain but also the love.

With our newest change to our obituaries on The Kentucky Standard website, we are hoping to aid in the process of helping with their grief process by allowing others to share memories, stories and love on our site.

The Kentucky Standard is beginning a partnership with Legacy.com that will bring a different look to our obituary page and allow the page to be completely open to online visitors for viewing and commenting.

About a year ago, The

LISA TOLLIVER

>> EDITOR
ltolliver@kystandard.com

Kentucky Standard website went to a subscription-based format. With a newspaper subscription, readers could access anything online they wanted but without a subscription, their ability to interact or read stories was limited. Those limitations included the obituaries we have on our site. Paid subscribers could view the obituaries, however, nonsubscribers were limited to the first few lines of an obituary. This brought out some strong opposition to our new format.

In an effort to bring an improved obituaries product to all website users, The Kentucky Standard teamed with Legacy.com. Founded in 1998, Legacy.com is a media company, headquartered in Evanston, Ill., that collaborates with more than 800 newspapers in North America, Europe, Australia and New Zealand to provide ways for readers to express condolences and share remembrances of loved ones and useful content. Today, Legacy.com adds one more newspaper partnership to its list — The Kentucky Standard.

According to its website, Legacy.com draws more than 18 million visitors each month. It partners with 85 of the 100 largest newspapers in the United States and features obituaries and guest books for approximately 75 percent of people who die in the U.S.

In addition to bringing our obituaries out from behind the subscription pay wall, allowing all visitors to see and read our obituaries, the partnership with Legacy.com allows The Kentucky Standard to offer online guest book services for condolences to family and friends. Sharing grief can sometimes be the best way to heal after a loss. This will allow another format for that sharing of stories and memories.

In addition to the online guest book services available and better access for all website users, the new format also provides directions to funeral homes locally or outside the region with interactive maps, links to national charities for providing donations in the name of someone who has passed and other useful content.

It is our way of providing just one more service to the family and friends of those who have passed. We are hoping you find more comfort in knowing the community shares in your grief and love for your friend or family member. Letting go is never easy but by sharing memories of those who have passed, the pain is a little easier to bear.

Some don't want their children to do better

As a member of a strong Democrat family, my mother saw FDR's funeral train, and the only time my father watched television was for the outcome of JFK's election, I never thought I would agree with Republican David Floyd. Rep. Floyd is correct, marriage is declining and children need both parents. Judging from his comments written in his article about mandatory school enrollment until the age of 18, he thinks it should be the parents' responsibility to keep their children in school. I agree, it should be the parents' responsibility. Rep. Floyd continues by stating that parents want their children's lives to be better than the parents. This is where Rep. Floyd and I part ways.

I do not know Rep. Floyd's age, but as a daughter of a mother who was born in 1920, grew up during the Great Depression and a young wife and mother during World War II, I can remember my mother saying, she hoped my life wouldn't be as difficult as hers, even though the problems she experienced was not her fault. My mother graduated from Bardstown High School in 1938, quite the feat for a woman back then. All of mother's six children graduated high school: one attended college, but quit to get married; another has an associate's degree; another has a bachelor's plus some master's classes; and the last has a master's plus. Not bad for a woman whose husband died before half of the children had finished elementary school.

Some of today's parents don't want their children to improve. As a teacher with 17 years of experience, I have seen repeating cycles too often. I have had parent conferences at which the parent wants her child identified as special needs so he can "draw a check." Students have told me that neither they nor their mother know who their father is. Teen parents usually come from single parent households. Students have rattled off names of half siblings, step-siblings, former step siblings as if they were discussing the weather. When calling a parent, never call the man who answers the phone Mr. Student's last name, because more than likely he will be a step-father or the boyfriend of the week. One 16-year-old student told me she will meet her 15-year-old sister for the first time. This same student showed me a picture of her father by searching mug shots on the Internet. These same students receive free lunch, food stamps and have a Passport medical card and brag about being on the government's dole. Are all these problems the child's fault? Of course not, it is all they have known and don't see anything wrong with these social issues; because of the lax parenting they have received.

Before I upset too many people, I know divorce is sometimes unpreventable. I have had successful students from single family households. These students have been enrolled in honor classes and have continued with a higher education. The difference between these students and the above mentioned students? A father is involved in the child's life. Whether you are married, divorced or have never been married, but have a child with a woman, be responsible as a parent and be involved in your child's life.

To answer Rep. Floyd's question, will mandating school attendance until 18 make a difference? Statistics have proven that high school drop-outs draw welfare for the majority of their lives. If a child already receives welfare and knows no other life, and has no aspirations, would forcing a child to stay in school help remove the child from government assistance or just increase the population in an already over-crowded high school? The students themselves tell us no.

>> GENERAL ASSEMBLY

State budget primary focus of General Assembly work

While we passed several important bills last week, my time was dominated with review of the House's proposal, House Bill 265, for the state's two-year budget. The plan will be roughly $9 billion per year or $18 billion total. In that, the Senate proposal carries about 6.58 percent authorized debt which is lower than the House's proposal of 6.8 percent and even lower than the Governor's proposal of 7.1 percent. The Senate's budget puts more money into the Rainy Day Fund and significantly lowers the state's structural imbalance. It is bad public policy to bond or restructure or borrow money to pay for current expenses. The Senate crafted a financially responsible budget that reflects what every family in the Commonwealth has had to face during the last several years — less money. We needed to decide what was necessary as opposed to what would be nice to have. People decide between paying their mortgage or going on vacation, paying their utility bill or going to the movies. While the Senate budget provides for social services, education, public safety, and necessary infrastructure, we are mindful that we cannot afford some things that, while nice or even beneficial to have, are not ultimately critical. Of course, as the nation's and our economies improve, we will continue to evaluate and review our revenues as compared to our needs.

The Senate passed Senate Bill 134 which would facilitate returning military who have a HVAC specialty to obtain certification in Kentucky. SB 134 allows a current or former member of the United States Armed Forces to qualify for a journeyman license if he or she has been trained as a journeyman by the military and actively served in that occupation during his or her military service. We are grateful to the men and women who serve and it is not just to make their transition back to civilian life more difficult.

The Senate also passed several other bills to lay the groundwork for a prosperous future. If you ask business owners what kinds of things the government can do to help them, one of their top answers will be to tell government to get out of the way. Senate Bill 4 applies a moratorium on administrative regulations as the Governor determines which regulations to keep in place, amended, or repealed altogether. The Governor can then reissue the regulations he deems important and these will go through the usual legislative review. The purpose of SB 4 is to rein in what many feel is out-of-control red-tape. We need to look at these regulations with fresh eyes and make sure they still have a constructive purpose.

JIMMY HIGDON
>> STATE SENATOR

By now, it is common knowledge that math and science skills are important to students as they prepare for either a vocational track or college and future jobs. Senate Bill 11 will provide financial incentives to teachers, based on student achievement on Advanced Placement (AP) or International Baccalaureate (IB) tests in advanced science and mathematics. AdvanceKentucky, a private-public educational partnership, has similar programs in many of our public high schools and has experienced wild success as students score well enough to obtain college credit, saving both them and their parents' money. In 2010, AdvanceKentucky high schools represented a 53 percent increase in math/science/English AP qualifying scores (3 or above) above 2009. Qualifying scores among low-income students went up 109 percent. This is an investment in our future.

We also must continue to be conservative and frugal with the state funds (your tax-dollars) we do have. Senate Bill 118 will require all applicants for public benefits to either present a legitimate document verifying United States citizenship or submitting an affidavit verifying legal residency here.

Finally, the Senate passed Senate Bill 213 which provides transitional living support for young people who have aged out of the foster care system but still feel that they need a support system. A youth may choose, before they are 19, to extend or reinstate his or her commitment to the Cabinet of Health and Family Services to age 21. This means that the children will continue to be eligible for educational, residential, and psychological support to help ensure they will grow into productive members of society.

Next week, we will be entering in a conference committee with the House to hammer out differences in our budget proposals. The Senate will also be voting on the state's road plan.

There is still time to call me with any questions or concerns about pending legislation. I can be reached toll-free at 1-800-372-7181. You can also call me at home (270) 692-6945, if you'd like. We are on the World Wide Web at www.lrc.ky.gov.

He serves on the Appropriations and Revenue Committee, the Licensing and Occupations Committee, the State and Local Government Committee, the Education Committee, the Program Review and Investigations Committee, the Tobacco Settlement and Oversight Committee, and the Transportation Committee. In addition, he is also the Chairman of the Budget Review Subcommittee on Transportation.*

Bardstown Schools don't need all that land

To the editor:
Questions:
Why does the Bardstown School System need 70 more acres of land? No way!
At a cost of $57,142.86 an acre? Exorbitant!

Multiple times too high!
If they used it all, why do they need several times too many buildings? More than they could possibly use.
You should buy what you need — not what you want. It's easy to spend when someone else has to pay for it!

Property owner appeals Board of Adjustment ruling she must move her garage

A garage the planning commission claims was built too close to Loretto Road has led to a lawsuit in which the property owner claims local officials had ample time to point out the problem.

Twyla Hart filed an appeal in Nelson Circuit Court Feb. 13 claiming she believed she had filed all the proper paperwork when, six months after construction on her garage was complete, she received a letter from Joint City-County Planning Commission Director Janet Johnston-Crowe stating the property may not comply with the required 50-foot setback from the road.

The property in question is the former St. Mark's Church at 5591 Loretto Road. Hart has converted the church into a residence. Johnston-Crowe's letter came in October 2011. In January 2012, Hart's request for a 43-foot variance from the setback was denied by the Board of Adjustment. BOA minutes from the Jan. 12 meeting indicate three neighbors testified they had no problem with the garage. However, board member Charles Howard stated granting the variance may set a precedent, and made a motion to deny the variance. The BOA voted 4-0 to turn it down.

In court documents, Hart offers a timeline of the construction. According to that timeline, she filed an application for a zoning compliance permit to build the garage in April 2009, and filed for a building permit in January 2010. Hart states the Transportation Cabinet informed her the setback was 30 feet from the centerline of Loretto Road, not 50 feet.

It was then, Hart claimed, that she moved the site of the garage closer to the road to save on the expense of removing a light pole, and she submitted that drawing to Nelson County Code Enforcement, "because that's where I had made all subsequent changes to any projects requiring a building permit." According to BOA minutes, this should have been submitted to the planning commission.

The footing was later "dug, and inspected, and approved by Code Enforcement," Hart claimed. Hart told the BOA after footers were poured, there was no construction on the garage for five months because of cold weather, and said she didn't understand why the problem wasn't pointed out then.

According to Johnston-Crowe, the building does comply with Transportation Cabinet rules, but does not comply with local zoning regulations, which require a 50-foot setback from the property line, not the center line. The property line is drawn at the edge of the right-of-way, which may be several feet away from the edge of the road.

Construction of the 30-by-50-foot garage was completed in April 2011, according to Hart. The entire building was reportedly inside the setback area.

Hart claims in court documents that moving the garage would be a great financial burden.

"At this point, I do not have the financial capability to tear down, move and/or rebuild the garage. I work from home, and having a garage is necessary to the work that I do," Hart wrote. "If I'm unable to use the garage, the only option I have is to vacate the property."

At a January meeting of Nelson Fiscal Court, County

Attorney John Kelley and Building Inspector Logan Spaulding said it is not the responsibility of code enforcement to ensure buildings comply with setback requirements. Property owners aren't required to have their property surveyed but are advised to do so before they start construction, they added.

"A lot of times people won't want to hire a surveyor," but it's always a good idea, Johnston-Crowe said. The planning commission doesn't have a surveyor on staff. "Our legal counsel has advised us not to determine where property lines are just because of the liability issue."

Although Johnston-Crowe agreed it is the property owner's responsibility to determine if a structure is being built in a permissible location, she said the planning commission tries to prevent situations like Hart's.

"If the planning commission would have been notified the planning commission would have asked for verification of the setback," she said.

When the BOA considers whether to grant a variance, it is asked to determine whether turning down a request would cause an undue hardship for the property owner, and whether the property owner has committed a willful violation. Johnston-Crowe said it is up to the board to define what constitutes an undue hardship, but she said Hart did not provide specific evidence as to what the cost would be to move the garage. She said the board determined the location of the garage was a violation, but did not specify that it was "willful."

Hart declined to comment for this article on the advice of her attorney.

ERIN L. MCCOY/The Kentucky Standard

Twyla Hart built a garage next to the former St. Mark's Church, now her residence, at 5591 Loretto Road. After the garage had been built, the Joint City-County Planning Commission informed her it was too close to the road, with the entire 30-by-50-foot structure inside the setback area.

Local parish gives hope to Haitian children and sister parishes

bbowman@cni.com

Joe Zarantonello has been coordinating the Haiti Relief Project for 26 years with St. Joseph Parish. After Haiti's last earthquake in 2010, St. Jude Parish was built in Haiti's capital of Port-au-Prince. Aside from education, the newly built parish addresses the poverty and sanitation problems facing the population.

Like many other areas in Haiti, the parish is empowering the locals with an economic opportunity, which economically benefits the individual and the trash-laden environment of Haiti.

"We started a recycling center in Port-au-Prince where locals can actually clean up their environment and get paid for it," Zarantonello said.

Clean water is a problem in Haiti. Water is sold in plastic bags. People tear the side of the bags for consumption and discard them in the streets and canals, according to Zarantonello.

"The locals call it pick-up money. People pick up trash, we buy it from them and sell it," Zarantonello said.

The phrase Ramase Lajan means "Picking up money," in the Haitian language, which is a mix of Creole and French with mostly West African grammar. The program is having a large impact on the sanitation problems throughout Haiti. Citizens now look at their trash as cash, according to Zarantonello.

The parish sells the collected plastic to a local recycling plant. Currently, the parish employs four people to manage the collection center. According to a newsletter released by Zarantonello, the workers agreed to $2.50 a day, which totals about $75 a month per employee. The start-up cost of the collection center was $16,000 and Zarantonello hopes the collection center could be self-sufficient after six months of full operation.

"The parish needs $2,500 to keep the center going until it becomes self-sufficient," Zarantonello said. "I do most of the fundraising myself online. We have donations not just from the United States but Canada and Europe."

Zarantonello makes frequent trips to Haiti to ensure funding goes straight to the parish. After the latest earthquake, Zarantonello and other members of the parish were able to coordinate a trip to Haiti to two of their sister parishes: St. Jude in Port-au-Prince and St. Francis Xavier in Akil Samdi. According to Zarantonello, Young Haitian girls enjoy dresses brought to them from St. Joseph Parish trip to St. Francis Xavier Parish in Akil Samdi.

Sister Marie Seaman sfcc. of St. Joseph's Parish deserves the credit for delivering dresses and soccer balls to St. Francis-Xavier.

"She really made this happen," Zarantonello said. "Sister Marie, Father Bill Hammer and I took about 300 dresses for the little girls. We took 200 of them to Mother Theresa's orphanage and also donated soccer balls for the boys."

The idea of choice seemed to be lost on the children, according to The Rev. Hammer.

"The girls aren't used to getting new things. Most of their things are handed down and when we laid several dresses in different sizes in front of them to choose from, they seem almost overwhelmed. It was like a sensory overload. You could see the glow and joy in their faces," Hammer said.

According to Hammer, many areas of Port-au-Prince still lay in rubble and tent villages experience problems with sanitation. With a diminished police force, women and children are the first victims of brutality. For Hammer, the need to help is evident.

"In the Christian sense, they are literally our family. They are our sister parish and sister school. Kids here should think of them as their classmates and do them as they would for their own classmates here," Hammer said.

Zarantonello said the parish occasionally takes members of the parish to Haiti.

"It is something positive that we have been doing for the last 26 years. The experience changes them and that is why the parishes have been so successful in surviving for this many years. Until someone goes to Haiti and sees the situation for themselves they don't understand why these people need help in so many ways."

female staff members of the parish.

Woman injured in collision near Dinner Train

ERIN L. MCCOY
emccoy@kystandard.com

Nelson County EMS transported a Bardstown woman to Flaget Memorial Hospital with non-life-threatening injuries after a two-vehicle collision Tuesday morning. The accident occurred when Jessica Cammack, 31, was driving her Chevrolet

Lumina southbound on North Third Street, near the Old Kentucky Dinner Train, about 8:30 a.m. “Apparently someone turned in front of her,” Bardstown Police Officer Tony Satterly said. That person reportedly pulled over into the right lane, then slowed to turn right onto West Barber Avenue. Cammack’s vehicle slowed, as well, but a Toyota RAV4 driven by Ed Wicks, 40, Bardstown, was unable to stop and struck the rear of Cammack’s car, Satterly said. Cammack complained of knee and neck pain, according to Satterly. Wicks did not appear to be injured. Both vehicles sustained minor damage.

Bluegrass Christian Academy K-3 class, don Safari hats, as they stalk the halls of Parkway Baptist Church on the lookout for special sounds and letters. K-3 instructor, Kelly Koenig, leads the young students throughout the building as they search for letters that represent or make a certain sound. It always ends with a special treat and reward.

“It’s a fun way to teach so many things,” Koenig said. “They soon learn that they must work together as a team and the importance of following directions.”

Just following a designated line leader and listening to the sounds of the ‘hidden’ letter makes for great language development and letter recognition. The children love to go hunting for the class’s lost letter and of course the small treat that always awaits them upon recovering it.

Tavern. This event will be open to the public and will allow visitors to interact with the Colonial re-enactors.

- A Rifle Frolic will be 1-3 p.m. Saturday, with a flint-lock shooting demonstration noon-2 p.m. on Sunday. The frolic will feature a shooting competition from that time. A bus will run to and from the event. People will be able to register for the event at the door. Prizes will be given to the first-, second- and third-place finishers.

- On Saturday, a Historic Ball will be 7 p.m. inside the mansion Wickland. Medley added that musicians would perform an 18th-century dance routine to music provided by the band, White Orchid.

“It’s a fun dance,” Medley said, noting that the performance will incorporate the public.

Admission to the ball is $20 for the general public and $10 for registered event re-enactors. Most of all, Medley hopes to see the ball grow into a timeless event to which many people look forward.

“We hope the historical ball will become a significant event for Kentucky,” Medley said.

- An 18th-century market fair will be set up Friday-Sunday at Old Bardstown Village and Wickland Estate. Some of the items that will be offered include household items, glassware, soaps, furniture, clothing and jewelry.

- Medley noted that a new addition to Colonial Days this year is the (Toma)Hawk Throw and Eastern Native American demonstration. This will take place Saturday and Sunday.

According to Medley, this event will show some of the Indian skills that were utilized during that time period.

- On Saturday and Sunday, historical speakers will discuss their life and accomplishments during that time in Kentucky’s history. Some of the speakers include Mad Anne Bailey, Daniel Boone, Simon Kenton and General George Rogers Clark. Another presentation will discuss medicine and surgical practices during the 18th century.

Medley said Colonial Days is intended to be a fun day for all families, as well as a learning experience for children.

“(Colonial Days) is intended to be very educational and participatory,” Medley said.

Most of all, he hopes Colonial Days will become a landmark event for the town.

“Our goal is to grow,” Medley said. “We (hope) to become a major event for Bardstown.”

Admission is $6 for adults and teens and $3 for children 6-12. Children 5 and younger are admitted free of charge. For more information, call (502) 396-5311 or visit www.bardstowncolonialdays.com.

with a possible graduation date for Nelson County High School as June 1.

Bethlehem High School set its graduation date for May 20 and the last day of school as May 24.

Unlike Bethlehem’s student body, which is comprised of students from other counties where weather considerations take into account a larger geographical area, Director of People/Personnel and Instructional Related Services for Bardstown City Schools Todd Hood considers the city schools much luckier.

“We don’t miss as many as other schools do since we are in the city. We haven’t had a school year where we didn’t miss any days since the 2005-2006 school year,” Hood said.

Although the district didn’t miss any full days, when the outbreak of tornadoes hit the region, Bardstown Public Schools released students early to ensure their safety. Based on bus routes, students were released in two waves with other districts following suit.

“We didn’t want students being caught in a storm in the middle of their route,” Hood said. “We made sure there was going to be some-one home through our one-call system to their homes and if a bus driver didn’t see anyone there to meet them at the stop, they were brought back to school to wait for their parents.”

Hood sets aside 10 make-up days throughout the school year. Early releases or delays due to weather don’t affect the calendar year until the school accumulates in excess of six hours.

“Once we go over six hours of early release or opening delays, we have to make up the six hours before the cycle starts over again,” Hood said.

Bardstown City Schools last day of classes is set for June 1 and graduation is June 2.

Nelson girls win season-opener

NC boys are second; Tiger girls third at CAL meet

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

Nelson County girls dominated their season-opening meet Saturday, capturing the Fairdale/J'town Spring Fling team title over runner-up Jeffersontown, 176-89.

The Cardinal girls scored firsts in seven different events, while the Nelson boys — runners-up behind Jeffersontown, 139-108 1/2 — grabbed wins in three events.

“It was a good meet to start the season on,” Cardinal coach Dan Bradley said.

The Nelson County girls’ 4x800 meter relay squad captured first, and the Cardinals also got distance event wins by Breanne Hughes in the 1600 and Daniella Godenzi in the 3200.

Bradley was especially thrilled with the performance of sophomore Brianna Harmon, a newcomer to track and field, who grabbed the win in the 100-meter dash in 13 flat despite running in the middle heat.

“We knew she was quick; we knew she was fast,” Bradley said. But “she surprised all of us.”

Kayla Moore got the win in the 300 hurdles, and another track newcomer, Allysa Johnston, scored big by winning the discus and finishing second in the shot put.

“She’d never done her events before,” other than in practice, Bradley said of Johnston. “That’s a huge pickup for us.”

Paige Clark was first in the high jump.

Local shooters grab state berths

PETER W. ZUBATY
pzubaty@kystandard.com

Nelson County posted several strong scores at the 5th Region archery meet earlier this month, including crowning a regional champion in junior Morgan Harrell, who posted a high score of 278 out of 300 to win her division.

The Cardinals also had a third-place finisher in junior Michelle Simpson and a fourth-place with junior Alexis Downey.

On the boys’ side, Eric Johnson was fourth among the boys with a 278 score out of 300.

As a team, Nelson County placed runner-up to Lincoln County with a 3,209 score, easily eclipsing the 3,000-point threshold to qualify for Tuesday’s state meet at the Kentucky International Convention Center in Louisville. The Patriots’ score was 3,250.

Archery is a club-level sport at this time, but it will be sanctioned by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association as a varsity sport next year. The teams are co-ed, with each team having 12 in competition. Of those 12, at least four must be either boys or girls.

Longtime archer Lewis Jewell took over as coach of the team this season from Stephen Campbell, the Nelson County Sheriff, who started the program.

Jewell credited Campbell for the number of advanced shooters he’s found on the squad his first year, and the kids for their hard work in practices, which are at 7 a.m. weekdays in the NCHS freshman gym.

Molly Ulrich, a fourth-grader at St. Gregory competing for the All Saints Archery team, captured first place in her division at the 5th Region archery tournament at Lebanon. She will compete in next week's state tournament at the Convention Center in Louisville.

OUTDOOR TALES

Outdoors: Turkey safety equals turkey success

Turkey hunting requires preparation. Wild turkeys are much different from their farm-raised relatives. They are much smarter.

The more a hunter learns about wild turkeys and their habits, hunting equipment, and where the birds are located, the more likely he or she is to be successful. Scouting for birds before opening morning is important.

Preparation includes learning safety techniques, which may not only make the hunter safer, but also more likely to bag a bird.

Turkey season kicks off in Kentucky April 7-8 with youth weekend. The opening day of the regular spring hunt is April 14 and the last day is May 6. Hunters may take one bearded turkey per day and a total of two during the season. A spring turkey license is $30 for residents and $60 for nonresidents.

Indiana’s spring wild turkey season begins April 21-22 with a youth hunt weekend. The regular season starts April 25 and continues through May 13. A turkey license is $25 for residents and $120 for nonresidents.

Safe turkey hunting tactics are well worth learning, according to Tom Hughes,

PHIL JUNKER
OUTDOORS COLUMNIST
>> outdoorscribe@yahoo.com

assistant vice president of the National Wild Turkey Federation. He says the safety tactics also will help a hunter get that gobbler into range for a shot and a place on the dinner table.

A safe turkey hunter is much like a safe driver — you must be defensive-minded. Also, keep in mind that a safe hunter is an effective hunter. Here are 10 tips from the NWTF to consider when you’re in the woods:

- Leave the area if you suspect there’s another hunter already working for the same bird.
- Resist the urge to stalk turkey sounds. It is nearly impossible to sneak up on a turkey. It is also unethical and could lead to an accident.
- Select a spot that is in open timber rather than thick brush: wearing camouflage clothing and eliminating movement is more critical to success than hiding in heavy cover.

- Sit against a large stump, blow-down tree trunk or rock that is wider than your shoulders and higher than your head when calling wild turkeys.
- Never wear bright colors, especially not red, white, blue or black because these are the colors of a wild turkey gobbler. Watch out for red, white or blue on your socks, T-shirts, hooded

Senior Andrew Clark tossed a complete-game five-hitter Monday to help Bethlehem even its record at 3-3 on the season with a 9-0 home win over Bullitt Central.

Clark struck out nine and walked just one in the win, and also enjoyed a big day at the plate with a single, double, triple and two RBIs.

The Eagles jumped on top with a five-run first inning and never looked back, as nine of their 11 hits went for extra bases. Brooks Duncan also contributed big with a double and three RBIs.

Bethlehem was in action Tuesday after press time against Washington County in 5th Region All A Classic play. The Eagles visit Portland Christian Thursday.

NC softball gets first win

Nelson County picked up its first win of the season Saturday against visiting John Hardin, riding a 13-hit attack to a 12-6 decision.

Emily Feltner got the win for the Cardinals, who are 1-5 following a tough 14-0 loss Monday against Central Hardin. Savannah Ballard ripped a pair of doubles against John Hardin, while Katrina Boone and Ashley Gamlin also had two-base hits.

The Cardinals hosted Bethlehem (5-1) after press time Tuesday and will be visited by Elizabethtown Thursday.

first-place mark in the 400, covering the course in 55.5 seconds.

"That was the performance of the day," Bradley said.

Also in action this weekend was Bardstown in the rugged Harry Greschel Invitational at Christian Academy — Louisville.

The Tiger girls took third, scoring 67 points in the team competition. Manual was first with 131 points. The Bardstown boys had a rougher time of it, scoring 31 points. St. Xavier won the meet with 108 points.

Junior Victoria Yocum got the only first for the Tigers, winning the 200, while also placing second in the 100 and third in the 400.

The Tiger girls got big points in the pole vault, grabbing spots 2-4, led by Samantha Bowling. Caprishia Green also had a strong meet, placing second in the discus and third in the shot put. Sydney Pohlman also had top-five finishes in two events.

On the boys' side, the pole vault was also where the Tigers made their biggest mark. Clay Donaldson was runner-up and Ben Beam was third. Justin Hubbard also placed third in the high jump.

Local teams will be in action Thursday at Bardstown's first All-Comers meet of the season.

sweatshirts, hats, bandanas, etc. Wear dark undershirts and socks, and pants long enough to be tucked into boots.

- Remain still and speak in a loud, clear voice to announce your presence to other hunters if necessary. Never move, wave or make turkey sounds to alert another hunter of your presence.
- Keep your hands and head camouflaged when calling.
- Maintain a clear field of view when using a camouflage blind or netting.
- Ensure your decoy is not visible when you are transporting it. Stash the decoy in your vest and make sure the head is not sticking out. If you harvest a wild turkey during your hunting trip, you also should cover the bird's head and body when carrying it out from your hunting spot.
- Put your gun's safety on and approach the downed bird with your firearm pointed in a safe direction after firing. Never run with a firearm.

Spring turkey hunting is a wonderful experience. Of course, every hunter wants to harvest a tom, but even if you are unsuccessful, watching the sunrise and listening to the sounds of spring as it becomes alive in the morning is a wonderful reward itself.

Asparagus is a garden investment

I am only now recovering; it has been four days since Andy and I planted 100 asparagus crowns. Planting asparagus is an investment on all accounts — time, labor, money, patience — and then the big payoff, which is fresh asparagus for two months each spring right from your own garden.

This is the second time I have participated in an asparagus planting extravaganza (I told Andy when we were finished that two times in a lifetime is enough for me!) I planted asparagus with my father nearly 30 years ago and we are still enjoying the bounty from that original planting so, you see, the investment is worth it all around.

Perhaps you are not interested in the volume of work and yield that 100 crowns offers, so maybe 25 planted in a permanent spot in the garden will suffice. Asparagus is a perennial so be certain about where you plant and be serious about preparing the planting bed. This is the hardest part but once it is done, it is done!

JENEEN WICHE

» IN THE GARDEN
Syndicated Columnist

Asparagus will continue to produce for 30 years or more if it is properly maintained, our original planting is proof of that.

Prepare a 10-inch deep trench that is about 2 feet wide; add lots of organic matter such as composted manure if your soil is clayey. We use a stagger pattern to plant the crowns, imagine the paw prints of a cat and plant accordingly, spacing the center of the crowns about 12 inches apart. To get asparagus started it is not a bad idea to add a little phosphorus into the mix so I sprinkle a little bone meal into the trench before spreading out the roots of each crown and planting. Cover the crowns with about 2 inches of soil, reserving the remaining soil for later.

The unique thing about planting asparagus is that we add soil gradually through several weeks. Cover the crowns little by little as they emerge from dormancy and poke above the soil surface — a telltale sign to add some more soil until we are back even with the soil surface. Keep the plants evenly moist during this time.

When you purchase your asparagus crowns it will be noted how old they are (you can tell, too, by how robust they are) if you purchased 2-3 year-old crowns you can start harvesting a little by next year but it really is best to leave them be during the first year so they can go straight to fern. At the fern stage the plant can maximize photosynthesis and pack in the energy to develop a strong root system and therefore higher yields next year. Harvest a little next year and then you should be ready to really enjoy by the third year after planting

Long term maintenance includes weeding (which, as a perennial crop, does become a problem after years in the same place, try using corn gluten as a pre-emergent); also don't cut asparagus tops (the fern growth) back until they have naturally died back; the plants need to store energy throughout the summer and fall through their foliage for a good crop the following spring. In fact, we have been burning our dried fern debris in late winter; this also accomplishes some pest control by burning any eggs of the asparagus beetle that might remain form the previous season. Only burn if you are safe to do so in proximity to others and to buildings, though! You can fertilize during active fern growth after the harvest season with composted manure or a balanced granular (I like the mixes that are organic such as Espoma's product line; or make your own mixing cottonseed meal, bone meal and kelp.)

Obesity is dangerous to mind, body

Since Dr. Rob Farrell, Nelson County's first bariatric (weight-loss) and general surgeon, became a member of Flaget Memorial Hospital's health care team, I've been doing some research on the effects of obesity. It's clear that excess weight can harm your health. What we often don't consider is how harmful negative attitudes about obesity can be to an overweight person.

Farrell will outline the difficulties obese people face during his next weight-loss seminar, which will be at 6 p.m. Tuesday, April 3 at Flaget Hospital.

Many of us are aware that morbid obesity can lead to the development of serious health problems such as diabetes, heart disease, sleep apnea and osteoarthritis — not to mention a shortened life span. But there's a psychological and social price to be paid as well, since we live in a culture where "thin is in." You can't pick up a magazine or

TAYLOR
» FLAGET HEALTH
amytaylor@flaget.com

turn on the TV without seeing models with their ribs sticking out. In 99.9 percent of our movies, the heroines are stick-thin, while the heroes are extremely muscular. The shapes of these actresses and actors clearly don't reflect those of the average man or woman in this nation. Even so, we are bombarded with the images no matter where we go.

Many people who are overweight face the disapproval of family members and friends. The morbidly obese often face the sneers and negative remarks of strangers. Job discrimination, although illegal, is another burden. In a society in which citizens judge the outside of a person before looking for the self within, it can be a daily torment to be obese.

As an overweight child, I can recall other kids making fun of me. In my teens, I starved myself so that I could look like the women in the magazines. I struggled with yo-yo dieting for years, which was its own kind of punishment. No matter how thin I got, I always imagined I was too fat. It took decades to shed that old image.

If you are morbidly obese, and you've tried just about every diet known to man without achieving lasting success, bariatric surgery may be an option. It's something you would have to consider carefully. Free weight-loss seminars are one way to get information.

To register for the April 3 session, call 350-5492. It may just be that your days of being sneered at on the street are coming to an end.

Dinner with Art

If you haven't picked up your tickets for Dinner with Art, the fundraiser that benefits the Nelson County Community Clinic, you still have time. A $35 ticket will buy you a delicious meal and a chance to help those who don't have health insurance. Call 349-5990. The dinner is 6:30 p.m. April 13.

Taste of Bardstown

The annual fundraiser that helps Hospice of Nelson County patients and the Bardstown-Nelson County Hospitality Association will be 5:30-7:30 p.m. April 16. Tickets, which are $20 apiece, are available at Hospice, 111 N. Third Street. Call 350-5570 for more information.

Clinic donation

Trim Masters, Inc. donated $5,000 to the Nelson County Community Clinic for the second consecutive year. "They understand and believe in our mission of providing health, pharmaceutical and dental care to the working, uninsured, residents of Nelson County. On behalf of the more than 850 qualifying clinic patients and the Board of Directors, I am very grateful that Trim Masters, Inc. has chosen to partner with NCCC," said Jan Tronzo, R.N., B.S.N., executive director of NCCC. "The clinic began in September 2006, and has grown consistently over the past five years . It has reduced morbidity and mortality in Nelson County, reduced the cost of indigent care for local health care providers and most importantly has improved the quality of life for many of its chronically ill patients. It is truly a great asset for this community and its residents. I am grateful to be a part of this clinic and extremely grateful to the many volunteers and supporters of this community resource"

Presenting the check for Trim Masters Inc. are Foundation Jack Brown, Mike French, Maurice Lanham, and Steve Hesselbrock. Tronzo, center, accepts the donation.

Flaget earns Quality Respiratory Care recognition

Flaget Memorial Hospital has earned Quality Respiratory Care Recognition (QRCR) under a national program aimed at helping patients and families make informed decisions about the quality of the respiratory care services available in hospitals.

"About 700 hospitals, or approximately 15 percent of hospitals nationwide, have applied for and received this award," according to Flaget Respiratory Therapist Heather Mattingly, who serves as director of Flaget's Cardipulmonary Department. "This is the third year in a row that we have received the award."

The QRCR program was started by the American Association for Respiratory Care in 2003 to help consumers identify those facilities using qualified respiratory therapists to provide respiratory care. Hospitals that meet the QRCR requirements ensure patient safety by providing a level of respiratory care consistent with strict national standards.

“Respiratory therapists are health care professionals who provide a wide range of breathing treatments and other services to people with asthma, chronic obstructive lung disease, cystic fibrosis, lung cancer, emphysema, and other lung or lung-related conditions,” Mattingly said. “They also care for premature infants and are members of lifesaving rapid-response teams charged with handling medical emergencies.”

All respiratory therapists employed by Flaget to deliver bedside respiratory care are either legally recognized by the state as competent to provide respiratory care or hold the certified respiratory therapist or registered respiratory therapist credential, according to Flaget President Sue Downs, M.S.N., C.E.N.P.

"Respiratory therapists are available 24 hours a day at Flaget," Downs said. "They are highly trained and work under a physician's orders. They are absolutely vital members of our health care team."

Tree planting with machine to be demonstrated March 27

A tree planting machine, which will plant about 10,000 trees in one day, will be demonstrated March 27, on the J. A. Mouser farm near New Haven, S.W. Holsworth, District Forester, announced.

The planting machine owned by the Kentucky Division of Forestry, will be demonstrated in cooperation with the County Agent, C.B. Elston and the U.S. Soil Conservation Service. It furnishes a new quick way for Nelson County farmers to reforest their idle land and wasteland.

The planter, attached to the 3-point hydraulic lift of a farm tractor, will plant up to 10,000 trees in a single day while 2 men could plant only about 1,000 trees in the same time.

‘The Hunger Games’ Kentuckians help bring an epic adventure to the movie screen

Every year in the ruins of what was once North America, the evil Capitol of the nation of Panem forces each of its 12 districts to send a teenage boy and girl to compete in “The Hunger Games.” A twisted punishment for a past uprising and an ongoing government intimidation tactic, The Hunger Games are a nationally televised event in which “Tributes” must fight with one another until one survivor remains. Pitted against highly-trained Tributes who have prepared for these Games their entire lives, Katniss (Jennifer Lawrence) is forced to rely upon her sharp instincts as well as the mentorship of drunken former victor Haymitch Abernathy (Woody Harrelson).

FRED ALLEN
ALLEN’S ALLEY
>>> Film and Play Reviews

When 16-year-old Katniss’ young sister, Prim (Willow Shields), is selected as the mining district’s female representative, Katniss volunteers to take her place. She and her male counterpart Peeta (Josh Hutcherson), will be pitted against bigger, stronger representatives who have trained for this their whole lives. This will be a Cinderella story of truly David/Goliath proportions.
Kentuckian (Lawrence)

carries the full weight of the narrative as she trains to vindicate her district even if she must fight Peeta, who has a secret he has hidden for years. This will affect her relationship with the young Gale Hawthorne (Liam Hemsworth) whom she has left behind. Lawrence is sturdy and believable as this novel’s heroine must be. Hutcherson appears a little lightweight in his role, but maybe it is only because he has to compete with the intense Lawrence. Probably, we will see more of the second triangle of this love affair in the second film.

This film makes a strong distinction between the poor districts and the opulence of the capitol city. It pictures the how of the conditions, but not the why. To those who have read the book, the picture will seem short; to the others, the film is lengthy.

The book has been faithfully transferred to the screen without having a 4-5 hour film. The action is intense; the landscapes are incredible in a fantastic way. It is a cautionary tale of civilization gone bad, while being powerfully entertaining. “The Hunger Games” is truly an epic adventure.

Jennifer Lawrence is from Louisville and Josh Hutcherson hails from Union in Boone Co.

Family Rating: PG-13 for intense violent thematic material and disturbing images. No sex or language problems. Also featuring Stanley Tucci, Donald Sutherland, Elizabeth Banks and Lemmy Krazitz. Directed by Gale Ross from the first novel of the trilogy by Suzanne Collins. Music by T-Bone Burnett and James Newton Howard. (2 hr. 22 min.)

Lover who won't commit has every reason not to

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 45-year-old married woman with four kids. I fell in love with a longtime friend, "Hugh," two years ago. He's single and has never been married.

I told him I want a relationship, but he says that since I'm married we can't have one. I told him I love him, but he's not sure he feels as strong about it as I do. We have been spending a lot of time together and have started to get intimate.

I told Hugh I don't want to just fool around — I want a commitment. He worries about my kids, and that if I leave their father they won't understand.

My husband is very cold and distant. We don't say much to each other anymore; we're just two adults living in the same house raising our kids. We have gone to counseling, but it didn't help. My husband says things are fine — but they're not.

I'm angry because Hugh is willing to fool around but not commit. He says this shouldn't go on anymore and his heart isn't in it. The fact that I'm married bothers him. I told him to wait and eventually my husband and I will divorce. I'm hurt by his decision to back out. I feel he wanted the intimacy but doesn't want ME, and I feel used. How do I sort this out?

USED IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR "USED": You weren't used — you threw yourself at Hugh, and what has happened was by mutual consent. Why would you expect a commitment from him when you haven't shown yourself capable of sticking with one? I credit Hugh for his honesty — he hasn't led you on. That you're married SHOULD bother him.

When a man tells you his "heart" isn't in it, trust me, the rest of him isn't far behind. Don't waste your time being hurt. Learn from this. You have unfinished business to attend to. Your marriage is a mess. If it doesn't survive, you owe it to the next man in your life to be available before you start prospecting. If you're not, this will happen to you again and again.

DEAR ABBY: A few days ago, my significant other, his 18-year-old daughter, "Maria," and I were in our living room discussing "Jonah," a slightly older guy she has been dating and who spends a lot of time here. I told her I have high expectations for her and think she can do a lot better than him.

I didn't realize that Jonah was in the next room when I spoke my mind or that he had heard me. My boyfriend told me later that Jonah said, "Now I know how she really feels about me!"

Abby, he's a nice kid, and he's always welcome here. I feel terrible about hurting his feelings, even though my opinion about him not being good enough for Maria hasn't changed. Still, I know the effect crass words can have on a young person, and I should have thought twice before opening my mouth.

Should I apologize to him for what I said? If so, what should I say?

HOOF IN MOUTH

DEAR HOOF IN MOUTH: What happened was regrettable. By all means apologize to Maria's boyfriend for hurting his feelings. Tell him that you didn't mean to be cruel, but that you would feel better about the relationship if he had higher goals. It might be the push he needs to raise his ambitions and become more successful in life when he's older.

HOROSCOPES

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You have a lot to discuss. Allow adequate time for other responsibilities, errands or whatever dominates your schedule. A talk could involve someone playing devil's advocate. Appreciate that this person cares enough to function in this manner. Tonight: Visit with others.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Curb a need to have things go your way. You have spirit and endurance, and you probably could wage an endless battle. Do you want to focus on that type of interaction? Back off, and give some thought to what you are doing. Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ You are all smiles and full of energy. Do not allow someone to intimidate you. Claim your power, but avoid walking on others — for your sake and theirs; newfound respect will develop as a result. Let feelings flow. Tonight: Movie night out.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ You might feel strongly about certain matters, but this is not the time to act on them. Re-think, brainstorm and stay on top of others' demands. Know that you soon will be on top of your game. Understand what is needed. Tonight: Busy, aren't we?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★★ Zero in on a situation involving key people in your life. It could involve a decision or a discussion. At this point, consider yourself lucky if everyone is on the same page. Do not push your opinions on others. Tonight: Where the action is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ You naturally assume the lead. You could be surprised by what is heading down your path. Give someone the respect he or she deserves, but understand that showing respect does not mean you have to agree with this person. Tonight: A must appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ You do a good juggling act. You could have a difficult time, as others dump more errands, requests and responsibilities on you. Look beyond the obvious when dealing with others. Kick back, and note what is not being said. Tonight: Reach out to a friend or loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ You might want to avoid an associate's or partner's feedback. Stop your automatic response, and attempt to get past your resistance. This person understands you and often has great suggestions. Tonight: Carry the theme of teamwork into the night.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ You might want to do more listening. Others demonstrate unusual capacities. They, too, have great ideas. You might find it interesting to be more passive. When you detach, you can gain a better sense of those close to you. Tonight: Early to bed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ You could be exhausted by your efforts to make a dream a reality. Know that you will need to handle an overwhelming amount of requests, plus whatever is already on your plate. Do more listening. Tonight: Exercise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Your creativity expands the more you use it. Others appreciate the unusual and different slant you put on a personal matter. A child could demand more attention. You find time spent with a loved one rewarding. Tonight: Let the rascal within you romp.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Stay centered, and know what is going on. You could be taken aback by someone's neediness. You cannot change this person, but if you feel too engaged, step back a little. He or she might be a bit thrown off. Make adjustments. Tonight: Happily head home.

The Rainforest

LIFE IN LAYERS

As many as 30 million kinds of plants and animals live in the rainforest. The trees and other plants that make up the rainforest grow together so densely that they create layers, each with different climate characteristics. Read about the layers. Then follow the directions to color the rainforest picture.

Upper Canopy 65' – 100' +

In the upper layer, the tops of the tallest trees form a canopy that spreads out over smaller trees and plants. Some of these trees grow to be 200 feet high. Plenty of sunlight reaches this layer, making it the hottest layer of the rainforest.

ANIMALS: Eagles, monkeys, bats and butterflies

 Color the sky blue, the treetops bright green and the trunks brown.

Lower Canopy 30' – 65'

This is the most colorful of the layers. Since the upper canopy shades the harshest sunlight, this lower canopy receives a filtered light in which flowers and vines grow. The vines grow from tree to tree, forming a woven maze.

ANIMALS: Snakes, toucans, treefrogs

 Color this layer with bright flowers and a mixture of greens.

Understory 5' – 30'

Only patches of sunlight reach through the upper layers to the understory, or mid-zone. Shrubs and small trees grow in this shady, damp layer.

ANIMALS: Jaguars, leopards, insects

 Color the plants green and brown and darken the spaces between.

Forest Floor 0' – 5'

The rainforest floor is very dark and damp. Only 2% of all sunlight can reach here because of the plants above. The temperature stays around 80° F all year.

ANIMALS: Giant anteaters, sloths

 Color the plants dark green and spaces between very dark.

Find It!

Look closely. Hidden in this rainforest is a shoe, a pencil, a cup, eyeglasses, a watch and a golf club.

Make a circle graph to illustrate each fact.

6% of the planet is covered in rainforests.

50% of Earth's plant and animal species live in rainforests.

2% of all sunlight reaches the rainforest floor.

No Place Like Home

Write a classified ad for a habitat for a rainforest animal. Read the Homes for Sale in the Classified Ad section of the newspaper for ideas. Use abbreviations where possible.

Standards Link: Writing: Use a variety of forms in writing.

Extra! Extra!

Kid Scoop Together: Monkey Math

Spider monkeys are racing to the treetops. Each monkey can only climb as far as the last correct math problem on its tree. Start at the bottom and see who wins.

Standards Link: Earth Science: Students know that distinct environments support the life of different plants and animals.

Standards Link: Number Sense: Calculate sums to 2,000; evaluate accuracy of response.

Kid Scoo-doku

Complete the grid by using all the letters in the word FOREST in each vertical and horizontal row. Each letter should only be used once in each row. Some spaces have been filled in for you.

FROM THE LESSON LIBRARY

Rainfall Reader

Look for newspaper articles about this year's rainfall in your area. Is it higher or lower than the average rainfall expected by this time of year? Discuss how this year's rain could affect the summer fire season.

Standards Link: Earth Science: Know how available resources affect an ecosystem.

What color is rain?

ANSWER: Water color.

Write On!
